Tico is an idiomatic term used for a native of Costa Rica. Costa Ricans are usually called ticos by themselves as well as by people of other Spanish-speaking countries. For instance, in standard Spanish 'un poco' means 'a little', the diminutive is "un poquito" (a little bit), but Costa Ricans often say "un poquitico."

The backstory

A few years back, during our stay in the little red house; really just down the street from our current and hopefully final location here in Lake Oswego we used to Smoke Chicken. It really goes without saying that it was a smashing hit. We were thrilled to be there.

The road construction began and so did our peril. Running out of time and with nowhere to go, and given the lack of options in the vicinity, we decided to move to Bangy Road. We thought it was a fantastic space and very conducive to our business; still the one caviat this place had was that we were unable to bring the smoker with us. Getting used to the place and the new location took time, however despite its proximity we just couldn't replace the organic traffic that Boones Ferry offers.

We took our chances and decided to go for it. At the time we had no idea that another spot would opened up or that we would even be able to come back to Boones Ferry or that even a pandemic was looming in the near future. With hard work and under difficult circumstances we were able to manage the storm and successfully relocate the business.

Our one missing component from this puzzle was to somehow recuperate the Smoked Chicken. With a brand new smoker and the same delicious recipe; the Smoked Chicken is finally back, here, again.
